Don Hale Enters Three-Corner Fight To Become Postmaster

The Carmel postoffice became this week the center of a political battle as another candidate threw his hat into the Democratic ring in the hope of receiving the appointment as postmaster.

Don Hale, prominent local realtor and for several years a resident here, was being supported for the position of postmaster in a petition being circulated in Carmel which has already a number of signatures of local Democrats.

At the same time, friends of William Overstreet, incumbent postmaster, were rallying to his support. And despite the fact that Overstreet is a progressive Republican, indications point to the fact that he may be re-appointed when his term expires the latter part of this year.

Still another Democrat who is in the active line-up for appointment to the position is Mrs. Irene Cator. Mrs. Cator some weeks ago received the endorsement of the Monterey county Democratic committee and probably has as strong a chance of being appointed as any other candidate.

According to supporters of Hale however,, Mrs. Cator is not eligible for the position because she has not lived in the village permanently. Yet, it has been explained, by the time Overstreet's commission expires, Mrs. Cator will be eligible for the appointment.

While appointment of the postmaster lies in the hands of the president of the United States, it is principally up to Congressman McGrath to recommend the nominee. McGrath has on previous occasions announced that he would accept the endorsements of the Democratic county committees.

Council Attempts Curbing Auctions At Local Stores

Public auctions of merchandise by local stores may be regulated in the future if an ordinance now under consideration by the city council is passed.

At a special meeting called for that purpose Tuesday afternoon by Mayor John Catlin, the council discussed various ordinances that might be adopted by the city preventing the staging of auction sales.

Councilman Herbert Heron, who brought up the matter, told the council that the auctions that have been held were taking thousands of dollars out of Carmel, which should go to the regular stores that are in business here.

"Public auctions are a detriment to the business of Carmel," Heron explained to the council. "It is not fair for the other store keepers to compete with bankrupt stock that in many instances has been brought into the village for disposal from outside cities. Furthermore, from another point of view, auctions are bad for the atmosphere of Carmel."

Virtually every member of the council, including Mayor Catlin, appeared to be in favor of Heron's views on the subject. At the suggestion of Mayor Catlin the matter was referred to the Carmel Business association who will make a thorough investigation of the matter.

A report of the findings of the Business association will be made at the next meeting of the city council to be held on Wednesday March 1st.

"Carmel Dollars" Moving Rapidly Through Village, Survey Reveals

Carmel Dollars are moving more rapidly than was at first anticipated and present indications are that the entire issue of one thousand dollars will be placed in circulation without difficulty.

A brief survey made of local stores who have received the Carmel Dollars showed that customers are taking them willingly in change. Virtually every local store will accept the Carmel Dollars.

Last Saturday, the first issue was placed in circulation when some 20 unemployed men were paid in Carmel Dollars. A similar sum will be given out tomorrow.

"We are entirely pleased with the way the Carmel Dollars are going over," Howell Byrnes, chairman of the issue committee, said today. "If the cooperation of the store proprietors and the residents continues in the same manner, there will be no difficulty in getting circulation for the entire one thousand dollar issue."

Byrnes is urging residents not to keep the Carmel Dollars for souvenirs but to put them back in circulation as rapidly as possible. Only through constant circulation can the issue be successfully absorbed, he explained.

Later on, Byrnes said, when the Dollars are redeemed and cancelled, residents wanting them for souvenirs can purchase them from the Business association at 50¢ each.

Kite Tournament Will Welcome New National Administration

With the inauguration of a new national administration at the capital city of Washington on Saturday, March 4, Carmel's annual kite flying tournament will be held on the Mesa in Hatton Fields. Boys and girls with lofty aspirations will strive in contests of skill to send their kites so high in the air that the incoming administration may see them.

A committee has been busily engaged in studying wind conditions, and it is hoped to have exactly the right weather to send kites skyward. Prizes are being offered in some of the contests. Home-made kites will be given advantages, and many are now being constructed throughout the village.

The Rev. Willis G. White, who for several years has had general supervision of the tournaments, will name the various committees and announce the program of events in next week's Pine Cone.

Carmel Wins Final Battle As Supervisors Adopt Zoning Plan

Battling against the seeds of commercialism that would have sprouted into hot dog stands and auto camps at its front door, Carmel once again triumphed this week when the board of supervisors adopted unanimously the planning commission's comprehensive zoning ordinance for the highway around Carmel.

As the result of the adoption of the ordinance, vihtually all territory surrounding Carmel will be restricted as residential area. It will allow only small sites for filling stations at three separated places between the top of the Carmel-Monterey hill and the Carmel River bridge.

The victory came Monday afternoon before the board of supervisors, following a six months' battle to zone the environs of the village. Carmel took up the battle against its arch foe of commercialism when the planning commission first proposed to allow a community center and hotel site to be located at the entrance of the city.

Over half a dozen formal hearings were held in an attempt to reach an amicable solution. Finally, Carmel pushed the fight through over the protests of Paul Flanders of the Carmel Land company and Willis Walker, wealthy property owner.

More than 200 Carmel residents crowded to capacity the supervisors' chambers during the hearing and urged support of the zoning plan.

"It will be the saddest day not only for Carmel but the entire Monterey peninsula if this zoning does not go through," Adolph Hanke, one of the leaders in the fight told the supervisors. "The Carmel Land company through Paul Flanders has broken faith with the property owners. It is now a question of whether the wishes of the people of Carmel will be heeded or the request of selfish real estate agents."

David Ball, another property owner in Hatton Fields, read advertisements of the Carmel Land company published in the Pine Cone in 1926 and 1927. The advertisements promised restricted protection against commercialism to prospective owners of property in Hatton Fields.

Flanders, put on the stand by his attorney, explained to the supervisors that his company had not purchased the land east of Hatton Fields when these promises were made to property owners. He said that Hatton Fields would remain restricted and free of commercialism.

Flanders admitted that there was no immediate need for a commercial area, but pointed out that it would be difficult in the future to get one, once the zoning ordinance had been passed.

Frederick Bechdolt, Frank Sheridan, Mayor John Catlin and several others spoke in behalf of the zoning plan.

Finally ,a sudden tense silence came over the crowded chambers of the supervisors when Andy Jacobsen moved for adoption of the ordinance. County Clerk Carol Joy called the roll. There was no hesitancy; each member of the board voted "Aye," and the room broke into cheers and applause that lasted for several minutes.

Once again, Carmel had won the perennial battle to keep out commercialism.

Rainy Day Cupboard Asks For Support of Carmel Women

By M. F. Grant

The committee of the Rainy Day Cupboard met at Mrs. Rendtorff's house recently to discuss ways and means to augment a constant replenishment of the Cupboard with groceries of all kinds. The requests for help that can be given without publicity of any sort are never ending and incessant.

Our stores are always on the diminishing scale, and we share, alike with so many other organizations of help, that ever gnawing anxiety that we may not be able adequately to supply a need when suddenly called upon. We therefore appeal and we trust to the infinite charity and kindness of the Carmel ladies, again to come forward with their weekly donations of groceries, no matter how small. A couple of cans of milk, a pound of rice are so gratefully received and find their destination, as do the larger gifts.

Today we need cans of milk, coffee, and small cans of cocoa, lentils, rice, sugar, canned fish, corned beef, cereals, canned goods of any description that are of a satisfying nature; we need cooking fats; bacon and beef dripping collected in the household during the week are much appreciated. These parcels may be left on any day at any time at any of the following houses: Mrs. Nye, corner Dolores and Eleventh, Mrs. Hyde, corner Casanova and Eighth, Mrs. Rendtorff, Camino Real between Ocean and Fourth, Miss Ruth Huntington, the Point, Mrs. Creighton, North Camino Real, Mrs. Grant, Junipero and Fifth.

All these ladies are on the telephone and can give any needed information regarding the Cupboard. We greatly desire to make clear the assistance rendered by the Cupboard does not overlap the help given by other organizations. Occasionally the Cupboard will augment such help where the donation has had perforce to be slender, but in the ordinary course, the cartons of groceries go where they are sorely needed and undemanded.

Need we say more? I think not. One cannot witness the daily generosities, self sacrifice and kindness of heart of the Carmel women without a present and enduring hope for a steady and constant supply of the grocery donations we so sorely need.

Abalone League Starts Season With Many Spectacular Plays

By Winsor Josselyn

Abalone season is open! This, to a region that is the home of the abalone, is highly important. Also first-aid season, hurried lunch season—season for arguments, hoarse voices and charlie horses.

Last Sunday on the Point and Carmel Woods diamonds, under blue skies and warming sun (yes, Mr. MacNamee), the 1933 series opened with eight teams. Space is too limited to give the lineups and mathematics as we used to enjoy doing, but we will highlight the results and maybe some of the heroics.

Down at the Point at promptly 1:25 Mayor Catlin was handed a brand new ball and, with a windmill wind-up, tossed it in the general direction of the plate. Chief of Police Moore of Monterey, crouching back of the batter, jugged it, cuffed at it and finally captured it. "Too hot to handle!" he exclaimed.

So it was the Del Monte and Country Club teams crossed bats and the season was open. This game, it was reported, ended with a score of 11-7 in favor of the Hotelmen. The winners are a strong team; some strength may be lost when their pitcher gets a legal, official and accepted Abalone style of delivery instead of his present semi-sidearm. The Country Club, captained by Fred Godwin, has got a lot of experienced players and will shake into form after a game or two.

Second game at the Point was won by the Shamrocks against Don Hale's Tigers, score 14-11. This was featured by much public speaking by players and officials; so much so that pitcher Ammerman strained his side and was relieved by Hale, although Mr. Ammerman insists it was pitching and not talking that laid him up. In this game Dr. Dave Matzke hurled to Frank (Flash) Murphy, and this battery mystified the enemy into hitting pop flies.

Frank Sheridan and Jack Orcutt umpired without casualties until, in the last game, Sheridan was hit by a liner back of pitcher but stalwartly refused medical attention.

Up at the Woods diamond, the Mayor and the Chief went through tendon-testing formalities and then the Pilots, under leaguemaster Charles Van Riper, took on the Giants, captained by Bardarson. Pilots won in a fast, close game 8-7.

One spectacular, neck-risking catch was made by Allen (Moonlit) Knight at second base for the Pilots. A rainbow fly came out and beyond him, but he, after two complete turns to get his bearings, reached for the sky and HE HAD IT. Maybe that was the play in which Charlie Van Riper busted the bat. W. Staniford, carefully coached by his father—Dapper Don—covered far more than his share of the outfield and we're going to investigate his amateur standing.

Then the Polo Club and Manzanita Club tangled, resulting in Polo Club winning 13-5. The lads on the Manzanita outfit will pull together after they learn it is a team and not a star group they're in. Polo Clubbers, needless to say, have C. Mortimer Henderson (Old Homerun) in their lineup and this alone is enough to upset any opponents. Charles Frost, captain, is reported a little bothered about Henderson's first-game form, but will keep him under contract at least another Sunday.

Umpires Staniford, Gray and Douglass got through with a minimum of assistance from the eager athletes, and at this writing none has turned in his mask in resignation.

Come up next Sunday—or go down to the Point—and see the region in action. And don't overlook the crop of new players we're cultivating on the sidelines, boys and girls who run and run and yell and yell and play a thumbnail game of ball underfoot every minute. There's Tony Van Riper and Rickie Masten and Young Staniford and so on; that's how we get such select material for later years—we grow our own.

Oh yes, they say that in order to lure the pinochle players up there on time they're going to put a table in the ex-hot-dog stand. Just bring your own cards and quarters and sit right down.

Games in Carmel Woods will be the Manzanitas and Country Club at 1:30, and the Pilots and Shamrocks at 2:45. At the Point the Tigers and Giants go for the first game, while Del Monte and the Polo Club will do the second.

Plans Underway For Benefit "Cabaret"

Plans were being rushed to completion for an elaborate entertainment and "Irish cabaret" to be given under the auspices of the Carmel Woman's club on March 17 at the Sunset school.

Present indications point to one of the most successful and jolly affairs that has been staged here in sometime. There will be an orchestra between the old auditorium and the gymnasium with dancing in each room.

Entertainment of all types, including vaudeville, stunts by the music society and dancing by Ruth Austin and her pupils. Arrangements for the events are in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. Stella Mather. Others assisting her include Mrs. C. J. Ryland, Mrs. E. D. Titus, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mrs. James Cockburn, Mrs. Louis Ralston and Miss Ruth Huntington.

Bardarson Presides at Principals' Meeting

O. W. Bardarson, principal of Sunset school, presided Saturday at a meeting of the Monterey county principals' association held in Salinas. Bardarson was recently elected president of the association.

During the meeting, Dr. John MacWillie spoke on personal impressions of the Orient. Assemblyman Ellis Patterson gave his views on recent happenings in the state legislature. Music for the occasion was provided by students from Sunset school.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Knight have a cottage here over the week-end.

Stronger Ordinance Regulating Signs May Be Passed by Council

An ordinance which will give the city greater power in regulating the construction of signs not only in the business district but also in the residential section of the village will be recommended to the city council at their next meeting by Mayor John Catlin.

Catlin disclosed today that he had discussed the matter with City Attorney Argyll Campbell, and he was convinced that a stronger ordinance could be passed by the council for the future protection of the village.

According to Catlin, a number of unsightly signs have recently sprung up in the residential section and unless immediate action is taken, others may be placed there.

At the present time, Carmel has an ordinance which regulates the placing of a sign when it extends from private property over the side-walk. It also prohibits the construction of a neon or electric sign in any part of Carmel.

"There are too many large signs being put up," Mayor Catlin said. "I feel we should have a strong ordinance regulating the construction of signs in the future. There is no need for big signs."

Campbell declared that a heavy tax can be placed on signs which exceed a limit to be decided upon by the city council.

"A number of cities," Campbell explained, "tax their signs by the foot. Through such a method, store owners and others are anxious to keep the size of their signs within reason."

Venus With Her Dainty Charms Is Placed Under Lock and Key

No longer will Carmel's famous "Venus" glorify for the benefit of the populace, the feminine beauty of the fifteenth century.

Scantily attired Venus is under lock and key—her days of showing off are over. Fred Wermuth, the village's ultra-modern art connoisseur, has placed Venus and all her charms in seclusion, to prevent any further attacks.

For several years, Venus standing in front of Wermuth's home on San Carlos, has been the art shrine of passing motorists. On two occasions, however, the marble statue has suffered injuries, from which, Wermuth says, she will never fully recover. Once, last July when Independence Day torpedos blew part of her skirt up in the air and then in January, when she was "kidnapped" by a group of Carmel youths.

To assure her further safety, Wermuth has secretly hidden Venus, and her customary place on San Carlos street is now empty and lacking her feminine charms.

Venus, however, may yet make an unprecedented appearance. Wermuth, it is understood, is planning to have her in court, when his damage suit against the parents of the youngsters, involved in the "kidnapping" is tried. Wermuth will seek to collect damages for a broken arm suffered by the statue.

Why Not Take A Friend To Theatre Tonight?

Just think for a moment . . . reflect a bit . . . isn't there someone in your immediate family or circle of friends or maybe some neighbor of yours who, through circumstances beyond control, has not been able to afford a movie in many months? Someone out of work. Someone who in good times was an ardent movie fan and who has not thrilled to a movie or had an honest-to-goodness laugh for a long, long time.

Wouldn't you get a big kick out of treating someone like that? Of course you would. It might be just a small thing to you but it would mean a great deal to someone who hasn't had much to cheer about. Treat someone to the movie tonight. Enjoy the show twice as much yourself, knowing that you have made someone else happy.

And here's another suggestion. Adopt a "Movie Kiddie." Some tot whose dad has been out of work . . . a movie-loving kid who can't attend a show unless some Good Samaritan treats him. Such a youngster in such circumstances would have a warm spot in his heart for you forevermore if you send him along to the movie. Especially to the Carmel Theatre's special Kiddies Matinee's on Saturday afternoons when we have extra thrills for the tiny folks.

Double Program of Low Fares Planned

A double offering of Dollar Day train rides, featuring cent-a-mile roundtrip transportation, is being planned by the Southern Pacific Company for the Washington's Birthday weekend, according to word received here.

The low fares will be in effect February 21 and 22 from all California stations to San Francisco in connection with the bay city's holiday festivities, it was stated. Opening of San Francisco's War Memorial and the Fields-Corbett championship boxing contest will be among the attractions.

This offer will be followed by a three-day excursion program, February 24, 25 and 26, between all points on the railroad's lines in six western states. San Francisco's spectacular ground-breaking celebration of the Golden Gate Bridge project is to be staged Sunday, February 26, with the United States battle fleet in the harbor for the ceremonies.

The return limit for roundtrips will be March 7 in all cases, according to the announcement.

Tax Reduction Looms As Salaries Face Slash

Probable recduction on county taxes in the future loomed this week as the result of a $25,000 slash in salaries of county employees recommended by the board of supervisors.

Action on the recommendation must be carried to the state legislature which sets the salaries of virtually all county employees. The supervisors accepting the suggestion of the grand jury, recommended cuts of five per cent for employees getting less than $1200, ten per cent for those receiving $2000 and 15 per cent for employees getting over $2000.

Tales of Olden Days in Movie Town Are Told

By Winsor Josselyn

A delightful story is told of a Hollywood party in the days before moral turpitude clauses in contracts, and when Fatty Arbuckle was going his laughing way.

A Mr. Schenk, later husband of Norma Talmadge, wanted to meet a new comedian named Buster Keaton with a view to signing him up. Fatty Arbuckle, reputed to be some relation to Keaton, was approached and said that he'd be delighted to do what he could. He said that Keaton was temperamental and hard to meet, but that he'd try his darndest.

A week later, Schenk got word that Keaton had been located, and that a dinner would be given to get the two together. Out at Fatty's house they gathered, the elite of Hollywood, and everything very swank. Time for going to the dining room, and still no Buster Keaton. Arbuckle was apologetic. He urged dinner, anyhow, hoping that his relative would appear at any moment.

The dinner began. Mr. Arbuckle murmured something about having more than his share of worries this evening, and vowing that never again would he try and break in foreign butlers at such an important function, indicating the liveried person coming through the door with a soup-laden tray at perilous angle. And what should happen but that as the butler was putting down Mr. Schenk's soup—a rich, thick, gummy soup—it got out of control and splashed all over Mr. Schenk's shirt front!

Consternation and harsh words from Arbuckle, and the damage was wiped up as best might be. If it were any balm to Mr. Schenk, he might have noted that every other guest was in some manner spotted or daubed or singed by the butler in his rounds with the soup, and a very crestfallen Fatty tried to make bright conversation to cover it up.

Worse and worse. Fish, roast—with all its gravy—a gooey dessert—all left their marks. The butler, frantic in his serious attempts to get things right, made the guests so upset that they all but got under the table when he approached.

At last it was over and they went into the living room, wiping and scraping to save something of their apparel, yet not hurt Fatty's feelings too much, poor fellow.

Then came the butler with the silver tray of coffee cups. Now he did try to do it all just as he should. But fate was against him, and never did coffee go farther than when he tripped . . .

"Oh, Mr. Schenk," cried Arbuckle, putting detaining hand on that gentleman's arm as he headed for home then and there, "I must have you meet Buster Keaton before you go," and there, right beside him, was the butler still wearing the now famous frozen Keaton face.

It is said that next day Fatty Arbuckle mailed to the guests checks that would have bought all the evening garb in Hollywood.

This question is often heard

"WHY DOESN'T the P. G. and E. REDUCE ITS RATES?"

HERE IS THE ANSWER:

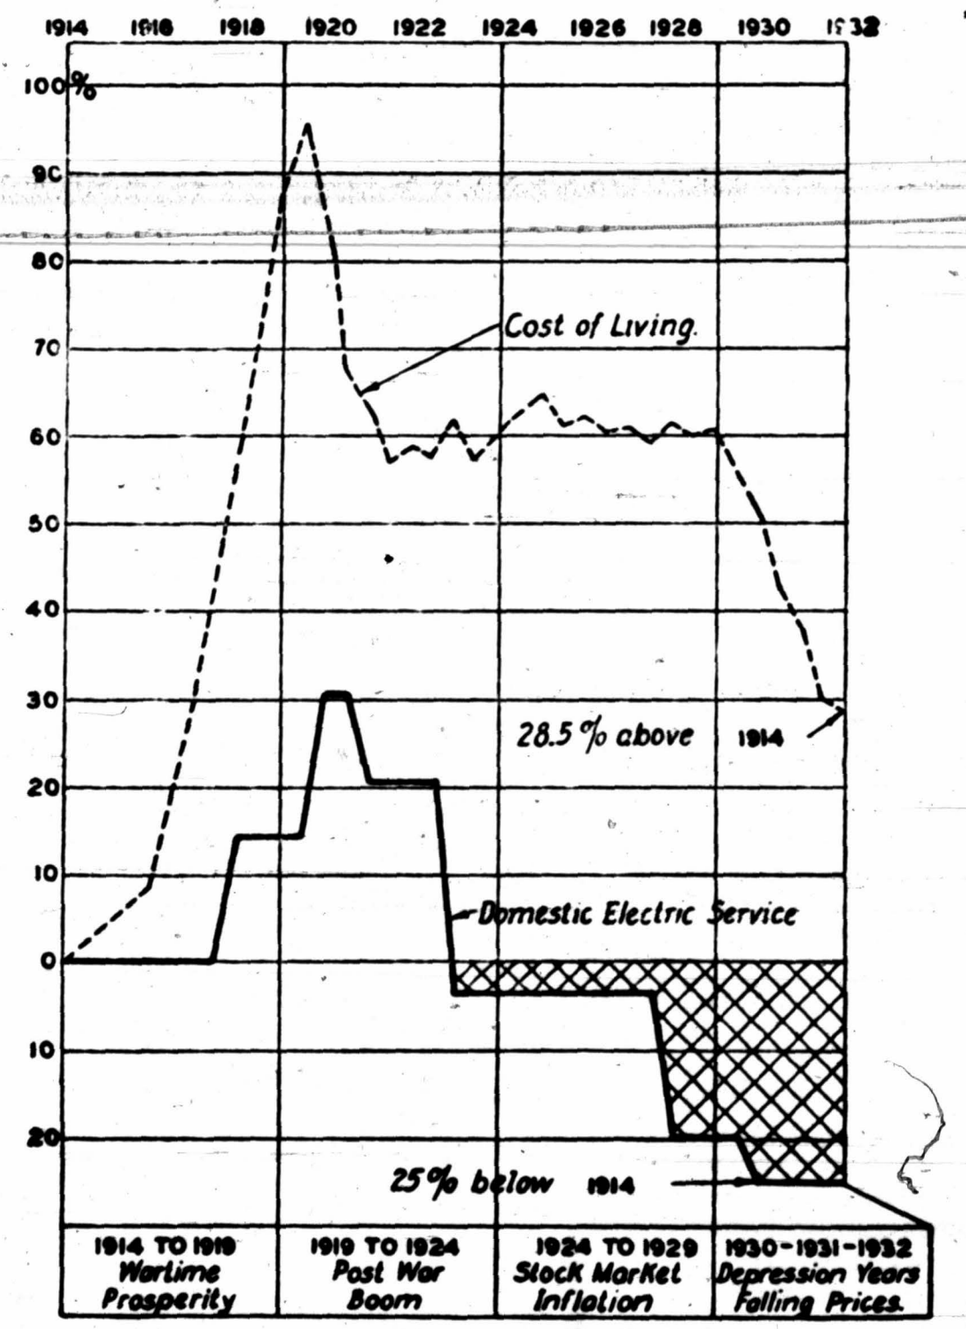
P. G. and E. rates have been reduced, consistently and substantially. They are today among the lowest in the country. The cost of electricity per unit to this company's domestic users is 25% lower than it was in 1914.

Furthermore, the average domestic rate of today is 42% lower than it was at the peak of Post-war Boom prices in 1920, when the abnormal cost of materials and labor forced the cost of electricity to the only rise registered in the rate books of this company. (This rise was but 30.5% above the Pre-war level while Cost of Living in general rose to 96% above Pre-war.)

From 1920 to 1929, the cost of living remained at about 60% above the 1914 or Pre-war basic index. Yet the cost of electricity to domestic consumers was constantly dropping, first to slightly below the Pre-war level and then as early as 1928 to a point substantially lower.

The domestic electric rate had fallen to Depression price before the present economic situation developed. Subsequent rate reductions have established the price of electricity to domestic users as the lowest cost necessity in the home today.

Recent price drops in certain commodities have been sensational, but the general cost of living is still substantially above the 1914 or Pre-war price level. Rates for electricity, controlled to sane levels in times of great prosperity and trending consistently downward since 1920, are lower than at any time in history. As shown on the chart to the right, electric rates show a divergence of more than 53% below present general living costs.



The cost of living has been based directly upon statistics issued by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics for San Francisco. The cost of electricity is based on rates in San Francisco for domestic uses of from 20 to 40 Kw. Hrs. per month. The data for San Francisco may be considered as generally applicable to the entire P. G. and E. system.

Michel Penha's Recital To Be Season's Musical High Light

By Hal Garrott

Judging from ticket orders flowing in from all directions, Michel Penha's cello recital in Sunset Auditorium tomorrow night will prove this season's outstanding musical event. Popular prices alone cannot account for so active an advance sale.

There are many who remember Penha's thrilling performance last summer when the audience rose in their places to "bravo" the artist considered by critics to be one of the world's greatest cellists. Every note that Penha plays has beauty. He is a marvel at program building. Every piece must be primarily cello music, designed to draw out the deep, rich, appealing tones of this most eloquent of musical instruments. Hence, at a Penha recital the audience is assured of an evening of ravishing melody, issuing from an instrument as emotionally moving as the greatest human voices, and more accurate in production of tone. No voice has ever attained the perfection of a musical instrument played on by a master artist.

I am advised that there are still seats available in nearly all sections of the house. If necessary one hundred extra chairs will be placed in the balcony. The generous program includes works by the following composers: Frescobaldi (1583-1644); Tartini (1692-1770); Sammartini (1700-1775); Handel (1685-1759); Bach (1685-1750); Haydn (1732-1809); Saint-Saens; Hure; Debussy; Lalo.

Novelist Gives Amusing Views On "Pinafore" Playing Here

By Richard L. Masten

It is stated upon very good authority that when someone posed the problem of costuming the operetta "Pinafore," playing at the Carmel Community Playhouse this week end, one of our most popular and active citizens came forward with the suggestion, "Let the girls wear yachting costumes. Every woman has a yachting costume."

Simple, isn't it? And it goes to show that in spite of depressions and things we haven't lost our sense of humor. We may have lost the business that so interfered with our more serious activities in the good old days, or the home from which people used to invite us to week end parties, or the extra couple of inches around the waist which made our clothes—the same ones we are wearing now—fit so much better, but our sense of humor we still have, and our wife still has her yachting costume.

So that when Major Shephard, as Sir Joseph, struts on to the stage in his inimitable manner, he might well add to his regular verses some such stanza as this:

Though the sheriff makes a call
And he takes our shirt and all
We still retain our yachting pants
And so do our sisters and our cousins and our aunts, etc.

Not exactly elegant, perhaps, but more or less a propos. If, however, the sheriff has by some excess of zeal taken your yachting costume along with the rest, don't worry. You will be welcome to "Pinafore" without it. And if in addition, the blows of the official hammer have somewhat impaired that salvaged sense of humor you may go to the same show with confidence that Gilbert and Sullivan had enough of that commodity for all.

As for the principals: When at the first dress rehearsal we saw the Major and Sam Ethridge, resplendent in cocked hats and gold braid, exchanging naval courtesies it seemed to us that Gilbert must have had them in mind when he wrote the parts. We could have sworn it if we hadn't known better. And then what should happen but that Sam, in the role of the gallant captain ,did swear though he did know better. And thereby hangs a tale.

If we were to look through the whole catalogue of light opera for a thoroughly clean play, a play to which we could take our children without the slightest fear of their seeing or hearing anything objectionable we would quite likely end up with "Pinafore." Yet in 1888 no less a person than Lewis Carroll, "shaken," as Franklin P. Adams puts it, "by the big 'D' uttered by Captain Corcoran in his 'Damme, it's too bad,'" wrote:

One passage was to me sad beyond words. It occurs when the captain utters the oath, "Damn me!" He said "Damn me!" I cannot find words to convey to the reader the pain I felt in seeing dear children taught to utter such words to amuse ears grown callous to their ghastly meaning. Put the two ideas side by side . . . How Mr. Gilbert could have stooped to write or Sir Arthur Sullivan could have prostituted his noble art to set to music, it passes my skill to understand.

And the amusing F.P.A. offers rhymed comment on Mr. Carroll's apparent affinity for the pompous Ruler of the Queen's Navee, who, as those who know Pinafore will recall, was also distressed,

It passes my skill to understand
How the author of Alice in Wonderland
Could have thought that aught but innocent
Was the source of Gilbert's merriment.

How weak today is the captain's curse
When tots of two articulate worse!
And that it made Lewis Carroll sad,
Why 'double dammee' it's too bad.

The show, "Pinafore." The authors, Gilbert and Sullivan. The directors, Galt Bell and Arthur Gunderson. The time, any evening up to and including Sunday Feb. 26—special price matinee on Saturday for the children. The place, Carmel Community Playhouse. The acting, good. The orchestra, good. The costumes, good. The stage set, good. The directing, good. The truth! Good!

Mary Ingels and Kathleen Murphy

By Hal Garrott

The piano and song recital by Mary Ingels and Kathleen Murphy announced for March 4 in the Denny-Watrous Gallery is attracting considerable interest not only in Carmel, but over the Peninsula. Both young women are artists of achievement. Both have numerous friends who have been watching with interest and pride the ascent of their musical stars.

Mary Ingels' successful piano recital last year will be recalled by many who crowded into Mrs. Vera Peck Millis' expansive drawing room. Since then Mary has grown musically and technically. For the past year she has been diligently at work improving her style under the tutelage of concert pianist Arthur Schmidt of Los Angeles.

Kathleen Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Murphy, makes her first Carmel appearance. Miss Murphy is said to possess a voice of natural fullness and sweetness, well trained during the past three years by Vasia Anikeeff. Her appearance March 4 is facilitated by the recovery of Vasia, who, after a long illness, has been able to resume his teaching. He considers Kathleen now ready for the concert stage.

Miss Murphy's program, of exceptional interest, comprises songs by old Italian writers, Debussy, our own Griffes, the Russians, and arias from operatic composers.

Local Lad Wins Honors at College

Charles Watson, son of Col. H. J. Watson, of Carmel, was elected secretary of the freshman class at the Menlo Junior College in a recent student election held there.

Watson has been active in Menlo athletics, having played two years of football in the Menlo School and been a member of the Junior College team last season. In track, he captained the Menlo School team prior to his enrollment in the Junior College and is, at present participating in that sport.

Mardi Gras To Be Given Next Tuesday

Plans were being completed today for the Madri-Gras ball to be given Tuesday night in the Green Room of the Community Playhouse under the auspices of the local chapter of the Alliance Francaise.

An eight piece orchestra made up of prominent musicians will furnish the music for the dance which will start at 8 o'clock.

Newberry's Authentic Autobiography

XXXVII

For me there has never been a finer spectacle than the play of "David" as given that July night of 1910 at Carmel's Forest Theater. All idea of criticism of technicalities was swept away in the thrill of its perfect beauty. I had seen no rehearsal, had not been in the theater before, and it all came upon me with the surprise and bewilderment of enchantment.

The auditorium was dimly lit by lanterns in the branches of the trees. Seats were found in semi darkness, and eyes focused on masses of foliage under bright stars, vague shapes that gave no hint of what was to come. Like fireflies were the candle-lanterns of the arriving audience, and voices were subdued to the tone of the place.

Then, like the light from a massive moon, came on the two limes that flooded the stage with a blue-white radiance of a fairyland quality. There were no stage lights, foot or sides. The play was given in the glow from front, and the shadows cast enhanced the effect of a night of moon and stars.

Never since, I am sure, has a play at the Forest Theater had so perfect a setting. The stage was but an open place in the woods, carpeted with pine needles, arranged with logs and boulders, backed by the foliage of trees. There was no slightest bit of painted scenery to dispel illusion. And it was a simple bible story told there, not at all complicated, yet strong and tragic in its effects.

I sat through it enthralled. The men and women in the garments of many centuries ago, who went through the parts assigned them, were not my friends and acquaintances of the village, but had become the very characters of the romance. Even Bertha, rushing on waving a torch and shouting a warning that the Philistines were attacking, was a stranger in that glow of the lime-lights. Herbert Heron as David; Helen Cooke as Michal; Fred Leidig, Tom Reardon, Helen Parkes, Alice MacGowan, Ferdinand Bergdorff, George Boke, Maude Lyons, all of them, though I had picnic-suppered with them on the beach a night or two before, were parts of a story of the bible that I had read, but never understood until now.

When it was over and the limes had doused their mellow glow, the audience wound its way out of the woods to the lights of a dozen bonfires that blazed along the pathways and street, showing direction to the head of Ocean avenue. The season of 1910 at the Forest Theater was finished. I went back to my typewriter, and the work of completing the house. But never again could I be indifferent to the activities of the dramatic group that centered around that stage in the pine woods. I had seeped its magic into my blood.

Next day—Sunday, July 10—Bertha and I made our way downtown to get the papers from San Francisco, that would be left at Slevin's by the noon stage. We were early, for we knew there would be a lively demand for them on account of the criticisms of "David." Walter Anthony had represented the Call, and Al. C. Joy had been sent down by the Examiner, both dramatic critics of ability. I felt sure that Bertha's single line, "The Philistines are upon us!" warranted a paragraph, at least, in both newspapers.

We were not the only bright ones in Carmel. Those of the cast not already at Slevin's, waiting the stage's arrival, were coming up as we slogged in. When Dad drove up, and dumped the bundle of papers, they were swiftly torn open, hurriedly scanned, and the pleasant atmosphere of a July afternoon became super-heated, lightnings flashed and thunder growled.

Not but what our Forest Theater production had its place in the columns of the papers. It was displayed in type and pictures, filling a page or more in each of the big dailies. And, in a broad sense, the critics had been kind to us. The beauty of the play and its setting in the forest had impressed them as it had me. Yet, in glancing over both accounts, I nowhere found any reference to Bertha's magnificent effort with the torch and the line regarding the Philistines and their whereabouts.

"Listen to this," shouted Ferd Bergdorff, waving an Examiner to gain a hearing. "This guy says that we were 'better than the average amateurs.' What the hell does he mean by that?"

"And Anthony here, the ass, says our acting 'was a thing apart, requiring its own rules of measurement, and establishing under the trees and within hearing of the surf, its own laws.' " read Herbert Heron. "Anthony don't know acting when he sees it."

"Joy says, 'It would be a sin if I should inadvertently be the means of inspiring any one of the cast with the belief in his talent, and send him looking for a professional engagement.' That sounds to me like a slam."

"But Joy isn't so bad," cried Helen Cooke, who had snatched George Boke's copy of the Examiner from his hand. "He says that I have a profile of classical beauty and touch the character of Michal with genuine appreciation."

"You touch the character—he doesn't say that you play it," sneered Bergdorff.

"Well, that's better than you get. He says that you suggested in the character of Nadab the freedom and bigness of your canvases. Suggested is all you get."

"Walter Anthony is kinder to you, Helen," remarked George Boke, from behind a copy of the Call. "He say that you were a surprise—"

"Surprise? I was a surprise? What does he mean by that?"

"Listen! He says 'I have seldom seen a more graceful figure on the stage. She moved through the play, backed by the ever green and ever growing pines, like a picture come to life—' "

"Let me see it." Helen reached for the Call. "This Anthony man sounds like a real dramatic critic."

"Does he? Does he?" Boke held the paper away from her. "Wait! He says 'Such evidences of inexperience as were shown in her speeches—' "

"Never mind the rest. Give me that dirty rag and I'll tear it up!"

"I'll tear it up myself," growled Boke. "He says of me that I was a 'striking picturesque figure, admirably gowned and wigged in white'. That's the art of dramatic criticism, believe me!"

"Don't turn loose your profanity till you read this about me," said Joe Hand. "I'm an 'indisputable authority on the price of Carmel real estate, and the posessor of a comedy role.' Not another word about me in the paper."

"Well, folks," drawled Doc Beck, "this Anthony fellow is advertising our businesses even if he doesn't know acting when he sees it. Gives my drug store a real boost, so I'm not complaining. How about you, Tom?"

"Says that Fred Leidig and I played our roles earnestly," Tom Reardon quoted. "I'm not bragging, but Anthony's got us right. Fred and I played damn' earnestly."

"So earnestly that we sweated at it," Leidig agreed.

Then spake Herbert Heron: "Tripe!" he ejaculated. "This is all tripe! None of these so-called dramatic critics know what he's talking about. Anthony says that I have a good voice and that several of my scenes are impressive. And that's all they know about acting. Is it ignorance, or were they drunk?"

Nobody could answer that question. Nobody had a kindly word for the San Francisco critics. Only two people in that group before Slevin's store smiled as they read the city newspapers. Saidee Van Brower's eyes gleamed brightly, for her solo dance had received critical approval; and Frank Devendorf, figuring the number of column inches of free advertising his village by the sea had achieved, could not conceal a broad grin.

Holman's Store Teems With Spring Offerings

Holman's is teeming these days with crowds who are seeking early Peninsula presentation of the newest offerings for Spring. Women's, Men's, and Children's departments are crammed with thousands of presentations that have been outstanding features at current Metropolitan Retail and Wholesale Fashion shows. And the prices, according to Mrs. W. R. Holman, are astounding even in 1933 when price has too often been overemphasized to the detriment of "Q" (Quality).

"It has been a point with us," says Mrs. Holman, "to feature price but never price without quality."

In the Women's department, particularly, we find such complete modernisms as the new mannish suits with novel checks, new necklines, and different sleeves as Paris and New York have dictated. There are the brushed woolen jackets, slipover sweaters, the new coats with completely original necklines and sleeves and pockets, the new hats including Neora braids, Bakus, and mannish Fedoras . . . and . . . Oh what's the use! A women's department like this must be seen; it is too extensive, expansive, and altogether interesting to even brush in a few words. It is like a compacted Paris and New York brimming with beauty, enthusiasm, and milling moderns who understand that what they have come expecting to find is there, and to a greater degree than they would have thought possible.

"Dream of a color, a design, a pattern, or a mode. Search as you will, you are discouraged! At Holman's you will find it!" For as Mr. and Mrs. Holman say themselves, "We search and study every authority to bring to Monterey Peninsula an even finer service than is possible in most cities many times our size."

Ward's Feature Style In Three Departments

Another new department has just been added at Montgomery Ward's already complete Monterey store. The department is one for the garden lover, and shrubs and trees of beauty for all types and styles of gardens will be carried. A little later it is expected that an extensive line of floral plants, seeds, etc., will also be added to the line.

The first shipment of new merchandise of this character is now being displayed outside the Montgomery Ward store for all to view and inspect. This new system of display is being used so that everyone who knows anything about plant life, can see, without obligation of purchase, what a superior line of plants these are, and how much lower they are in price than you would believe possible.

Ward's is also displaying at this time thousands of new Spring Fashions for men, women and children and more are arriving daily. According to Mr. Oliver, manager of the local store, Ward's has anticipated a great forward movement this Spring, and with unusual care has selected the most authentically styled and at the same time, the most amazingly priced merchandise imaginable.

A third department, the Furniture Department, is making a particular point of style this year. The local department manager recently attended the metropolitan furniture mart, and together with other Ward buyers, has insured a re-stock of the most desirable furniture and home furnishings obtainable.

"So," says Mr. Oliver, "make it a Ward Fashion week in the garden, in the home, and on your person."

About Spring Hairdress

That no sacrifice of quality or workmanship is necessary to give a lower price in hairdress, is the contention of William and Belle Varien, operators of the Vanity Box and Museum Beauty Shops of Monterey and Pacific Grove.

The Variens have built their business, they say, entirely through making every effort to build repeat business, through giving complete satisfaction always. As volume has grown, they have been able to reduce prices, without the least sacrifice of quality. Today, they say, business is better than it has ever been, as a direct result of this policy.

Andrews Shop Re-Stocks

Mrs. Andrews has, this year, personally selected a remarkably complete group of the newest things from the recent wholesale Fashion shows of San Francisco and Los Angeles, but she makes a point of stocking only one dress,

Carmel Fire Department Operates At Low Cost

The Carmel volunteer fire department probably operates at less cost than any similar sized organization in the state.

According to the figures given out by Fire Chief Robert Leidig, the expense of the department during the past 12 months was less than two thousand dollars. This, fo course, did not include the rental of fire hydrants and insurance.

Prominent Musician Visit Art Exhibit

Roy Harris, distinguished young American composer, with his wife and two friends, Miss Margaret Tilly, pianist, and Mrs. Hans Barkan of San Francisco, were in Carmel over the week end to visit friends here.

They called at the Denny-Watrous gallery while in Carmel to view John O'Shea's black and white show. Mr. and Mrs. Harris are motoring east and expect to return to California in the early summer.

Cats As Hunters Find a Defender

Editor—The Pine Cone:

J. K. Turner writes in last week's Pine Cone "that the house cat is the only menace to bird life that exists in this locality." He is evidently not very observant or else completely blinded—as many seem to be in Carmel—by prejudice against cats. It is really disgraceful the way residents going away forsake their cats, leaving them starving and homeless. I wonder how humans would behave under similar conditions? The greatest menace to bird life in this community is the boy with gun and a sling shot. I have never lived in a community where so much hunting of this kind was done with no disapproval or interference as far as my observation goes.

Shooting of gulls and sea birds is very common and I am told, on excellent authority, that one wealthy resident of the Valley has enjoyed good sport killing gulls on our beach.

Killing cats is a form of amusement or retaliation apparently that a few residents feel justified indulging in. "They kill birds" is the stock excuse usually offered, yet many of these residents merely smile to see or hear of their sons enjoying this "sport." Cats are also accused of killing fish in pools; a friend of mine lost a number of valuable fish and cats were immediately held the culprits but the cat making way with the fish was a two-legged animal, the son of a respected and wealthy Carmel citizen.

I have had cats for years about my homes and many birds also and never a mishap. Many cats, contrary to general belief, are devoid of the hunting instinct (as a few male creatures are) and a well fed cat is usually too clumsy and indifferent to catch birds. If a starving cat, now and then, gets a bird, is it as much of a misdemeanor as for a boy or man to shoot and wound or kill a lovely, flying creature for the mere pleasure of taking life?

Yours truly

Shh! Steffens May Run For School Trustee Job

It's true—or at least it may become true within the next few days. Lincoln Steffens, nationally known writer, who in his wide career has always escaped running for office, may enter the local political field and become a candidate for school trustee.

Steffens, it is understood, has not definitely made up his mind to enter the race and oppose E. H. Ewig and Mrs. Emma Rendtorff. At any rate, he is carefully considering it.

And if he does run, it is said, he will have a platform of "increasing school taxes and doubling the salaries of teachers."

One Third of City Taxes in Salaries

More than one-third of the money received by Carmel in taxes is paid out in salaries to city officials, the annual financial report of City Clerk Saidee Van Brower released today showed.

Of approximately $40,000 in taxes collected each year, $10,755 goes for salaries of municipal employees, which does not include the street superintendent and the crews used for laboring work. The highest salary received is that of Police Chief Gus Englund who gets $2,250 a year.

The biggest expenditure in Carmel is for street work. During the past year, over $13,210 was paid out for street construction work.

This is considerably lower, however, than the previous year when the street work expenditures amounted to $18,355.

During the year, taxpayers must pay out to provide reading material for city officials the sum of $69, Miss Van Brower's report shows. The Daily Abstract costs the city $24 a year and the California League of Municipalities, $45. In addition to this, $26.91 was paid out for municipal hand books and miscellaneous literature.

A ball to be given under the auspices of the Alliance Francaise will be held next Tuesday night at the Arts and Crafts hall, admission seventy-five cents. The proceeds will be divided between the employment fund and the Alliance Francaise.

THE "BEST SELLER" IN TIRES FOR 18 YEARS

When an overwhelming plurality of the public year after year singles out one make of tire as the highest representative of value and merit, we think that is tremendously important.

1933 is the 18th successive year that the Goodyear All-Weather has outsold any other tire at any price. The public prefers Goodyears and buys more Goodyears—more of them than of any other tire.

month in both Vogue and Harper's Bazaar, and is one of the best known and most popular lines of its kind, says Miss Brenner.

La Mode features one of the finest window display methods known, providing perfect visibility both night and day. An augmented stock of hosiery, underwear, etc., will continue to be carried, and the individual made-to-order department will be retained.

Game Cock Values

That the term "Dollar Hose" has come to mean little, is the contention of the manager of the Game Cock, popular Carmel store. She says that she feels price has come to mean more than quality lately, but that a real quality hose for a dollar is really something different and hard to find. She features such a line, at a price which is now cut to much under a dollar.

All styles and qualities are included in the newest Spring colorings which are carried in stock. There are the exquisitely sheer cobweb evening ones in the new Cyclamen shade, and many many other types and styles which are said to be exclusive at the Game Cock.

Meagher & Co. Busy With Daily Arrivals

Meagher & Company, popular Pacific Grove Dry Goods house, is preparing for the rush of Spring this year. He has anticipated more than the customary external appearance of the woman, and has planned and ordered for the stylishness and daintiness of the "woman underneath" as well.

And even that is not all, for Meagher has remembered that interior decoration in many homes is outmoded and outworn, and he has studied and considered the newest patterns and styles and weights for curtainings, draperies, furniture coverings, etc.

Stocks of household decorating materials, women's foundation garments, etc., is nigh complete, but knowing Milady's desire for the ultra new in dresses and coats, dress materials, and the like, many orders have been placed later for this type of merchandise. Only now are they arriving in appreciable quantity, but it is said that by the time this paper is on the press, all lines will be ready for formal and complete Spring showing.

Meagher has built his business on the slogan, "Quality Counts," and through all the years he has been in business he has been working, as he says, "to depreciate price to the lowest level which is consistent with the quality offered, but to never try to fool or deceive the customer as to what may be expected in performance from a material purchased.

Carmel Sport Shop

Sportiness and verve are the keynotes of the Spring Fashion displays at the Carmel Sport Shop, a delightful little shop on Ocean Avenue; the type of shop where one feels free to browse about without the fear of being expected to buy.

The new showings here are complete, or very nearly so, and, according to Miss Betty Jean Downing, manager, are the result of extremely careful and personal selection at the larger marts. She recommends especially the presentation of "Nattiknit" in sportwear, and the delicate creations in hats by Dobbs. "These things are just inexplainably Carmellish," she says, "and I want every Carmel woman to see them whether she can buy or not."

Cinderella Shop Features

The Cinderella Shop "Home Owned" by Janet Prentiss, Carmel resident for years, is now prepared to present her idea of what is most tasteful among the new Spring things in Carmel. Hers is a shop of distinct personality, because, as she says, "I do not believe that style alone makes a garment worthy of Carmel. I feel that it must have a distinctive caste or taste, to be wanted by a Carmel Woman."

Miss Prentiss also makes a point of carrying only one garment of each type in her store, another service which Carmel women appreciate.

Drove in Wrong Automobile

Jo Eturra was arrested Thursday on misdemeanor charges of driving an automobile without the owner's consent. He is alleged to have taken a machine owned by Lloyd Tevis, Carmel Valley, recently while Tevis was out of town.

Eturra was arrested by Highway Patrolman Leo Ramsey.

Arthur Gunderson is being applauded heartily for his work in directing the music in "Pinafore," the operetta which is making a hit at the Community Playhouse this week end.

IS THAT SO?

By Winsor Josselyn

Speaking the other day with Will Overstreet, our esteemed postmaster, about post office growth brought up the mail box topic.

"From six boxes to sixteen hundred. And say," he went on, "when the Slevins put in those six boxes that some salesman had talked them into adding to the stamp-and-postal trade—how many years ago we'll not say—they wondered for weeks who would ever rent them. Finally they got four disposed of and thought they could gamble on the other two. Yes, and a new office would have to plan on at least two thousand."

It is said on positive authority that a Japanese burglar once reassured his awakened victims by saying brightly, "Sh! I'm just the Japanese sandman."

Frank Sheidan, one of the best diplomats that the nation of Carmel ever sent to the nation of Hollywood, was ever a quick thinker.

In early Abalone days, when the Sheridan home, being the nearest dwelling to the ball park, was practically a club house, there was a game between the Shamrocks and some crowd reckless enough to play them. Frank was coaching at first base. He sent a runner streaking toward second and following him vocally with deep-chested advice.

The runner got there in a cloud of dust. So did the ball. The umpire was on top of the play and bawled his decision—a decision that in the confusion Frank thought was "Out!"

"Robber! Robber!" cried Frank. The actual decision was "Safe!" and Frank's teammates patiently explained this. With which Frank retorted, "Well, he'd have been a robber if he had said out!"

Another splendid way to touch off the fireworks is to listen to a radio announcer and then insist that he's mispronouncing certain words.

A fine word is "economics." Some pronounce it as if the first "e" were really "e" and not "eh." Dictionaries have been known to favor either way (either is ither or aither), and so that doesn't exactly settle the question—at least it didn't down at one Sunday night seminar.

"Economics" was pronounced for the fourth time by Will Durant on Richfield news and still the riot raged around the room. Unable to stand it any longer, Mrs. Frank Murphy (wife of the famous Shamrock baseball player) got up and went to the radio and hauled it around and peered into its luminous vitals.

"You're all a bunch of bums," she said to the others as she did so, "and the next time he economics I'm going to see it for myself!"

Garden Item: A pretty little fight started the other evening when argument broke out as to how to take care of a mint bed. The question seemed to be whether or not mint plants needed lots of water, and whether the water should be put on with a hose or a bucket. Of course, it may not have been that at all, but the question that started it was, "How do you make a mint drink?"

Monterey's new telephone numbers have been boosted into the thousands, some even unto the eight thousands. It is said that the Italian colony is having a riot because some of its constant phoners can't count in English even to nine, so how can they possibly use numbers like these?

Conversation illustrating the present-day sub-basement prices existing in stores:

"I hear that over there they're scared to death and selling things at practically give-away figures."

"Uh-huh! Why, I heard an actual case. The Woolworth store will sell for five, ten or fifteen cents nearly anything they've got!"

Carmel Spends Quiet Washington Holiday

The usual Carmel quiet way of observing a legal holiday, marked the celebration of Washington's birthday last Wednesday. There were countless out-of-town visitors, particularly from neighboring communities, who spent the day here.

At Sunset School, individual services were held in the various classrooms. In keeping with the policy of other schools in the state, Sunset School was not closed for the day.

Hal Gates Injured In Auto Accident

Hal Gates, well known Carmel resident, narrowly escaped serious injuries Wednesday afternoon in a freak automobile accident on Lincoln street between Ocean and Seventh.

Gates had his hand in the door of his car while talking to Dave Davis, who was at the wheel of the machine. Suddenly, Davis' foot slipped from the clutch and sent the machine shooting backward, knocking Gates to the ground. He suffered a broken arm and was treated by Dr. David Matzke.

"Blows the lid off the whole writing, selling, and publishing game . . . an amazing departure from the thousand and one other books on such subjects!"

says Harry Stephen Keeler, famous author and editor, about

"Trial and Error . . . Writing and Selling"

by Jack Woodford

who has sold over 2000 stories and articles to 200 periodicals ranging from COSMOPOLITAN, AMERICAN MERCURY, FORUM, etc., down to the sex, religious, and pulp story fields. Who has had 7 books published . . . 3 this year! Whose writings have brought him a six-figure fortune in the past 15 years!

How does he do it?

In "TRIAL AND ERROR" Woodford gives you hitherto unrevealed writing and selling tricks based on his own experiences . . . a startling presentation of the writing racket as it really is!

What taboos do you face? What makes a story salable . . . any story, from short short to novel? How can you approach editors? How do sex, liquor, and "conditional reflexes" affect writing? Ask Woodford!

"TRIAL AND ERROR" combines hard-boiled information garnered during an amazingly successful career with the satire and humor for which Woodford is famous. It surpasses, in frankness and cynicism; even his two greatest books of fiction . . . SIN AND SUCH, and EVANGELICAL COCKROACH.

Beginner or profesional, "TRIAL AND ERROR" will help you.

Moore Must Talk Fast, Telephone Company Sues

George Gordon Moore, former Carmel valley millionaire will have to do a lot of talking in the next few weeks if he is to escape payment of a $405 suit filed against him this week by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company.

Or at least, he has done a lot of talking in the past which resulted in the accumulation of the bill against him. According to the complaint instituted in the superior court, Moore on February 13, 1932 gave a promissory not for $405 to the telephone company, which they claim, has never been paid.

Christian Science Churches

"Christ Jesus" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, February 26, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will include the following from the Bible: "Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way? Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no mna cometh unto the Father, but by me. If ye love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:5, 6, 15).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus presented the ideal of God better than could any man whose origin was less spiritual. Through the magnitude of his human life, he demonstrated the divine Life. Out of the amplitude of his pure affection, he defined Love. With the affluence of Truth, he vanquished error. The world acknowledged not his righteousness, seeing it not; but earth received the harmony his glorified example introduced" (pp. 25, 54).

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Farley of Washington, D.C., and formerly of Carmel are making an extended visit at the H. E. Farley home here. Before their arrival in Carmel, the Farleys made a tour of the south. Farley was for many years in business in Carmel.

Superior Recordings

Reviewed by
T. Harold Grimshaw

In this year of Wagnerian commemoration Victor is obviously celebrating the occasion with records of music-drama, which, for fidelity of reproduction are outstandingly fine. "Siegfried" was the great Richard's favorite work; and it is this section of The Ring that is blessed so richly just now by new recordings. This time it is a magnificent rendering of the Final Duet, the dual rejoicing which follows the potency of Siegfried's kiss and Brunnhilde's awakening.

Curiously, this duet (though the climax of the opera) has never until now been recorded successfully. Several attempts have been essayed by different companies, each and all ending in disappointment for the connoisseur. But all things come to him who waits, and at last Lauritz Melchior and Florence Easton assisted by the Covent Garden orchestra present to the fastidious collector a really superb and complete duet. Seven sides of four Red Seal discs are covered, the odd side being given over to the Prelude to the First Act of the same music-drama. There will be much rejoicing over this release as it has been long desired by Wagnerians. Victor Masterpiece Album M-167.

Carmel To Get Only Small Federal Loan

Carmel will get but a small portion of the $10,300 loaned to Monterey county by the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation, it was learned today.

The original sum of $40,000 which had been asked by the county was slashed to a third, because state welfare officials felt that the relief money was not needed here as much as in other sections. How much Carmel will get, has not been decided, but it was reported it will not be more than $500.

City Manufacturing Its Own Drain Pipe

Giving employment to many local men out of work, the city of Carmel for the past few weeks has been constructing out of cement drain pipes to be used as culverts. The pipes are 15 inches in diameter and will be located in sections of the town where culverts are needed.

The work is being done under the direction of Commissioner of Streets Clara Kellogg and William Askew, street superintendent. It costs the city but half of what would have to be paid to a manufacturer for the purchase of the pipe.

Postoffice Parking Signs "Kidnapped"

Carmel police were this week searching for thieves, or malicious jokesters who sometime during the week-end "kid-napped" the two no-parking signs in front of the postoffice.

Where the signs went to and for what purpose they were taken is the puzzling question the police are attempting to solve. This is the second time during the past six months that the signs have vanished. On the last disappearance, they were mysteriously returned.

Improvement of Ocean Ave. Being Completed

Improvement of the center lane on Ocean avenue between Lincoln and Monte Verde streets was being completed this week under the direction of Miss Clara Kellogg, commissioner of streets.

The lane has been arranged in such a manner that machines can now park evenly. Rich soil is also being put in and Councilman John B. Jordan is contributing flowers and shrubs to be planted in the lane.

Wedding Ceremony At Community Church

The Carmel Community church was recently the scene of a charming wedding the principals of which were Cecil Calvin Quinn and Miss Audrey Anita Wagner. The bride is a distant relative of the famous Richard Wagner, one time Master of Bayreuth. Wagner's "Pilgrim's Chorus" from the opera Tannhauser filled the little temple previous to the ceremony. Reverend Harold Grimshaw, resident minister of the Carmel church officiated.

Painting of Mission To Advertise Carmel

Carmel Mission will be featured in a large mural on the walls of the California Building at the Chicago World's Fair this summer.

For months M. C. Hall of Monterey, manager of the California Mission Trails Association, has been laboring to secure this exceptional publicity for Monterey Peninsula, and he has received a letter from Theodore Hardee, director of the California building and exhibit, stating that the request of the Mission Trails association had been granted, and that a noted artist was now preparing the mural.

Bogus Employee

Carmel police and county authorities were searching today for a man who represents himself as being an employee of the Del Monte Properties company and collects orders for merchandise, cashing a small check at the same time. The man has no connection with the company and has fleeced a number of residents in this section.

STANDING UP FOR CARMEL

We said several times during the campaign last fall that Andy Jacobsen, candidate for supervisor, knew his Carmel even though he lived in Pacific Grove. He had, we insisted, gotten the germ through contact as an actor in the old Arts and Crafts' plays, and we promised for him that he'd understand our idiosyncrasies just as though he was Carmel born and bred.

And did Andy Jacobsen, supervisor from the Fifth District, make good when the time came? Ask any of the Carmelites who journeyed to Salinas Monday and listened in at the public hearing on the zoning plan. Andy Jacobsen might have been the "nuttiest" artist in our "atmospheric" village, working to save it from "commercialism." He was more Carmelish than any Carmelite. He sounded like a native son.

It wasn't an easy situation for Andy Jacobsen. Those who opposed the zoning plan at the meeting were his personal friends, and had given his election campaign important support. It cost something to go against them, nor was it a good political move. Yet Andy Jacobsen had no hesitancy, for he was a real part of Carmel, and this battle to protect its beauty and characteristics was his own fight. Carmel owes him thanks, and should remember.

And Carmel should give thanks to the four other supervisors, from scattered parts of the county, whose votes made the passage of the ordinance unanimous. It should give thanks to the committee of citizens of Carmel who conducted a long up-hill fight to change the map that had been prepared by the county planning commission to give auto-camps, hotels, camp-grounds, business centers and filling stations the state highway around Carmel for their uses. Particularly to Frederick Bechdolt and to Adolph Hanke are thanks owing from the people of Carmel for the successful outcome at Monday's supervisorial meeting.

BRING IT OUT IN THE OPEN

How little and unimportant are the issues that divide the two factions in the Sunset School District campaign for trustee is shown by the selection of the candidates. Mrs. Karl G. Rendtorff and E. H. Ewig are both of them thoroughly qualified to serve on the board, and the district would be proud to have either of them there. E. H. Ewig is more the business man than the educator, although by education and contacts he is able to take a place in the most erudite of bodies, and through his two children in the school, he has kept a lively interest in its affairs.

This is a time when the district need is more for business-like and economical handling of affairs than for the side of it which is now so ably represented by Clara Kellogg and Daisy Taylor. There must be drastic cuts in the expenses of the school, including the salaries of the principal and the teachers. That these economies may not let down the high standard of the school, a business man is needed upon the board to manage that part of its affairs.

And the campaign should be made in the open. Although it is hardly as yet begun, there are whisperings of malicious statements that would not stand for a minute in the broad light of day. Reputations are bing torn to shreds by lips pressed close to ears. Innuendo is taking the place of direct charge. This is no time nor place for a secret campaign of slander.

It has been whispered that E. H. Ewig is a Red; that he is a Jew; that his desire for the place of school trustee is to be in a position to sell groceries and supplies to the school cafeteria. Mr. Ewig is an American, born in San Francisco, and thoroughly loyal to his country's institutions. As trustee of the Sunset School district he will not sell anything to the school. Nor has he any Jewish blood in him. His interest in the school has been pronounced and consistent ever since his arrival in Carmel. More than two years ago, writing of Mr. Ewig in the PINE CONE, Hal Garrott said, "In spite of his hobbies, Ed Ewig is primarily a business man. He is one of those rare birds who look facts in the face. He is as honest with himself as he is with his customers. . . 'How did you happen to choose Carmel after San Francisco?' I asked. His answer surprised me. 'Carmel's school turned the trick. I was looking for a place to educate my children. Upon investigation, I found the school here to be among the best in the state'."

SNOW IN APRIL

Oh, Mary, the still morning
Is white with falling snow.
Where shall the meadow-lark flute now?
Where shall the robin go?
Her nest is white with snow.

Thin ice claws the lilac buds,
The sky hangs low and dark.
The robin shivers on the bough.
Snow chokes the meadow-lark.
The dogs of winter bark.

Dear mother, the gnarled fingers
Of Mother Goose pluck geese.
See the feathers falling?
They're white as new lamb's fleece.
They're white as pure white geese.

DESTINED

How can a gull content itself with sleep,
Knowing horizons that it must explore?
Having a sea-appointed tryst to keep,
How it must pity placid life on shore!

The Devil Walks

By Herbert Cerwin

When The Turn has come and historians dip their pens to relate the panic of 1929, they will use for illustration, one of the strangest stories that has come out of the depression.

We're giving it in advance for it takes place over the toll gate right in Pebble Beach. There in a 30-room estate overlooking the Pacific is a former millionaire and his wife.

Once they had so much money, they went as far as installing gold faucets in the bathroom. When on one occasion, the golden faucet failed to function, a plumber was brought from New York by airplane to repair it.

Then the millionaire's fortune disappeared. All that was left was his Pebble Beach estate and there, virtually penniless and ill he is at the present time living, with his wife doing all of the housework.

The gold faucets? Well, there's only one left. The others have been sold and melted to provide money for food!

One of our "special correspondents" in the postoffice informs us that the nudist colony, which had all the appearances of being a myth, is still in operation. Over a dozen letters addressed to the Society of the Sun, have been received at the Carmel postoffice in the last few weeks.

An author friend writes in to inquire into the economic side of Carmel. Isn't it a fact, she asks, that living there is more expensive than in any other part of California?

Of course not. The days of the $200 a month rental during the summer are apparently over. A realtor informs us that Carmel can now offer homes at cheaper rental than perhaps any other community in the state.

Food and other merchandise is sold at city prices. One San Francisco resident, whom we know, makes a semi-annual trip to Carmel to buy clothes. They're not only cheaper here, she maintains, but they are of finer quality and of better styles.

No one in Carmel should miss the John O'Shea exhibit at the Denny-Watrous gallery. O'Shea is radically different and ultra-modern and may cause strange pains in the anatomical regions of a conservative—but nevertheless, he is not an artist to be dismissed.

O'Shea paints what he sees and apparently doesn't care if anyone objects to it. Lucky Strikes have nothing on him—it's all realistic stuff—nature in the raw.

Lincoln Steffens, our friendly neighbor, who sometimes thumbs his nose at us, had a gathering of the younger generation at his home on San Antonio street the other night.

Socialism, capitalism, communism and all of the other "isms" came in for discussion. Before they went home, sandwiches cake and coffee were served.

As they were leaving the Steffens' dwelling, one of the younger members of the crowd, convinced of communism, slipped an extra piece of cake into his pocket. As he departed Steffens stopped him on the stairway.

"And what did you get out of the discussion here tonight?" Steffens asked with a kindly twinkle in his eyes.

The youth stammered, blushed and we are told, ran down the stairs, before Steffens could question him further.

Which by the way, reminds us of the fact that Pete Steffens has turned capitalist. He's selling the Post and Vanity Fair.

Meeting Called Of Business Men On Auctions

The Carmel Business association will hold a meeting in the City Council chambers next Monday night at 8 o'clock to consider proposals regarding the amendment of the existing regulations with reference to the conducting of auctions in Carmel. This is in response to a request by the city council at a special meeting held this last Tuesday when the matter was referred to the Business association for a recommendation. City Attorney Argyll Campbell will attend the meeting at the invitation of the president of the associaion, so that when the will of the majority of the merchants is expressed, he can put it into the proper legal form for the council's action.

Voting on the recommendation adopted will be reserved to members of the association, but all other merchants are urged to attend the meeting.

El Fumador Increases Dolores Street Store

For the convenience of customers and to better display facilities, El Fumador cigar store on Dolores Street opposite the Post Office has just remodeled and increased in size.

Although remaining in their old location they have taken over the office behind them in the court of the El Paseo building and have doubled their store space. A counter runs the full length of the store while on the other side magazine racks with a wide scope of literature takes up the wall.

According to R. E. Haller and Neil Twilergar, the increase of size will give their customers a better chance to find the magazines that they care to buy.

Every kind of tobacco, candy, and soft drinks can be obtained there. The delivery service of papers will continue as usual and subscriptions for all magazines and papers can be obtained at El Fumador.

Prison Film To Open At Local Theatre

Seldom, if ever, has the human side of prison life, with its laughter and tears, its romance, its thrills and its grim tragedies been painted in such vivid and dramatic coloring as is "20,000 Years in Sing Sing" which opens at the Carmel Theatre today.

This screen drama was taken from the book by Lewis E. Lawes, Warden of Sing Sing prison, who unquestionably knows more about the criminal heart and criminal life, as well as the technical side of prison affairs, than any other man in the country. It is a document of facts and truth which are stranger and more fascinating than fiction. Beside the many thrills, including a prison riot, there is a glowing underlying romance, made inspiring by the touching loyalty of convict women for their misguided husbands and sweethearts.

Spencer Tracy has the leading role, with Bette Davis playing opposite him. Others in the cast include Arthur Byron, Lyle Talbot, Grant Mitchell and Warren Hymer.

Book Tells Secrets on Genteel Art of Writing

Out of the hundreds of books and pamphlets which have been written to prepare the "golden" path that leads to fame in authorship—only one has come to our attention that is not filled with pedantic, useless information—and that book is just off the press.

"Trial and Error" by Jack Woodford and published by Carlyle House, reveals once and for all the secrets, if there are any, in the genteel art of authorship—or as Mr. Woodford calls it literary racketeering. It is not only a book valuable for the tyro as well as the professional, but it is written in a breezy, snappy manner.

Angry as one may get with Mr. Woodford, there is not a dull page in the book. Whoever reads it, will be either so disgusted with literary racketeering that he will never bravely face a typewriter again, or he will be so inspired that he will continue to pester busy editors until a check comes instead of a rejection slip.

"Trial and Error" here in Carmel where typewriters click at all hours of the day and night, should prove in great demand. Not in years has a book been written which reveals so much of the inside racket of the genteel art. It is a book, we believe, that professional writers, would prefer to see burned in the hearth together with "The Brass Check."

So then, you are thinking of writing?—well, Mr. Woodford proceeds in the opening page to inform you that the less intelligence you have, the smaller the vocabulary, the better are your chances of success in the commercial business of authorship.

He blandly reveals that thousands of western stories have made millions of dollars for their authors—and all of them, were based on the same, meager plot. If you do not believe him, glance at Woodford's formula and then compare it with the next story you read; they match.

Through "Trial and Error" is the only way you can learn to write. And Woodford, with some degree of ingenuity, gives you countless tips on how to avoid many of the errors made by the novice.

It is not a book for those who plan to write literature; it is principally a book for the commercial raconteur. And anyway, as Woodford points out, it's the check that buys bread, and not immortality. H. C.

State Seeks Tax On Estate Left By Millionaire

Despite the fact that he is dead, W. T. Beatty, Carmel millionaire, will be the center of a suit to be fought out shortly by the state of California against the state of Illinois.

This week, the state of California took the initial steps to collect its inheritance tax share of the estate left by Beatty. The state's petition filed by State Controller Ray Riley, asked that the executrix of the estate, Mrs. Valeria Beatty, widow of the millionaire, be ordered to file the will for probate in the superior court in Salinas.

Although not disclosed in the petition, it was rumored that the state of Illinois will attempt to collect the inheritance tax because of Beatty's prior residence in that state. The state of California will try to prove that the permanent residence of Beatty was in Carmel.

Beatty, retired financier and former president of the Austin Road Machinery company, was a patient in San Francisco hospital last month when he leaped out of the building and to his death.

Beatty owned considerable holdings in Carmel valley.

Opposing Candidates State Positions on School Matters

Editor of the Carmel Pine Cone,
Dear Sir:

Answering numerous requests to define my stand as candidate in the coming election I take this means of doing so.

We are all conscious of the sacred duty we owe to the education of our children. The future of our community, of our nation, of the human race in fact, depends on the education and training we give to the boys and girls of today. The ideals we hold before them and the examples we set them in our own words and deeds will bear fruit in twenty years from now. Are we sowing the seed that we should like to harvest then?

Ever since I came here I have been distressed to find the Public School of Carmel an object of strife for two warring factions and have observed with alarm the increasing bitterness of this struggle.

Each party claims to stand for certain fundamental principles, each blames the other for ill-will or poor judgment.

Important as these matters may be it seems to me they are at present overshadowed by an issue of much greater importance, and that is the evil influence exerted on our children, if the school is made the center of a struggle for supremacy, and the children are enveloped in an atmosphere of distrust and personal animosity in the community.

Just what can be done to create a healthier environment for the children I am not yet prepared to say, but I feel it must be accomplished or the spiritual development of the children will suffer.

And I feel hopeful about the outcome since I know quite definitely that in spite of all that has been said and done, both factions have the good of the school and of the children at heart, and I firmly believe that both sides have not only a right but a duty to use their ability and their judgment for the keeping up and the betterment of the school by cooperating in its management.

It is cooperation alone and cooperation in the widest sense, that will bring a solution of our community problem and that will help us to educate our children into happy, healthy, individuals, and enlightened, useful, and loyal citizens.

The group I represent in this election has not asked me to make any promises, they have not pledged me to any definite policy in case I should be elected. They are willing to trust my sense of justice and my common sense as I trust their integrity and sincere desire for fair play for everyone.

I am not sufficiently familiar with the situation in the school itself to be able to say that I have any definite program in case I should be elected. I trust that even an investigation will not make it necessary for me to advocate radical changes of any kind, but I shall certainly be in favor of thrift and economy wherever they can be used to advantage, and this not only in consideration of our economic crisic but because I believe that thrift, resourcefulness, and adaptability to changing conditions play as important a role in the character building of children as for instance industry, perseverance and self-control.

While my faction has not pledged me to any thing they have pledged themselves to an election campaign characterized by dignity and good will and this sentiment has my heartiest agreement.

EMMA E. RENDTORFF

Editor Pine Cone,
Carmel, Cal.

Dear Sir: In answer to your request for statement as to my position upon school matters as a candidate for the board of trustees of Sunset School district, I would say that I will stand for—

1. Economy of operation in every department of the school. Lower salaries for principal and staff, right down the line. Care in the purchase of supplies to take advantage of the lowest possible price.
2. The best possible modern public school, but no private school.
3. Open public meetings of the school board, with all records available for examination at any reasonable time. The board's meetings to be conducted in a fair manner, but in a business like way.
4. Americanization in its best meaning the intent and purpose of the school and its curriculum.

With two children in the school, I have thoroughly familiarized myself with its problems, and understand the situation very well. I have attended classes and watched the growth of the school during the past several years. I have not taken any side in the controversies now on over school affairs, and recognize no factions or cliques in this contest.
